

Inthrive Film Festival, Updates and More

Thank you for continuing to support this mission. In tough times, it's important to honor our friends, like you, who are fighting back against oppression and on behalf of the most vulnerable in our communities. Right now, there are many people to honor. Recently, the federal government cut $820 million in grants earmarked for programs that make communities safer (Click here to read more). These now decimated programs include those that support survivors of crime, provide substance use disorder treatment, support reentry services, and improve aid for those experiencing domestic violence. If allowed to stand, these cuts will make us less safe.

But many are fighting back. Some of our fellow organizations in various parts of the United States filed a class action lawsuit to challenge these illegal and arbitrary funding terminations. They, many groups, and individuals across the country are challenging arbitrary cuts to programming that keeps communities healthy and safe.

We at OAR are fortunate because our federal funding remains and we have a supportive community. Though we operate from the perspective of joy and abundance, we know that things can change for us at any moment. We remain inspired by the determination of groups and individuals, and we stand in solidarity with them.

To keep you updated on local events: Virginia's new Clean Slate Law is still coming, although it has been delayed. That law, passed in 2021, allows for automatic sealing of certain cases like simple marijuana possession and misdemeanor trespassing. It was set to be implemented in July of 2025, but has been delayed for infrastructure reasons until July of 2026 (Click here to read more). Don't forget that Virginia is hosting primary elections now and major elections in November. Please be on the lookout for candidates' views on key criminal justice policy and human rights issues.

We know times are difficult. We are so proud and honored to stand with and work alongside you.
